Noblesse Oblige.

I hold it the duty of one who is gifted, and royally dowered in all men's sight, To know no rest till his life is lifted Polly up to his great gift's hight.

He must mold the man into rare completeness, For gems are set only in gold refined: He must fashion his thoughts into perfect sweetness; And cast out folly and pride from his mind. For he who drinks from a god's gold chalice

Of art, or music, or rythmic song, fust sift from his soul the chaff of malice, And weed from his heart the roots of wrong. For I think the wrath of an outraged Heaven Should fall on the chosen and dowered soul

That allows a lump of selfish leaven, By slow fermenting, to spoil the whole. reat gifts should be worn like a crown befitting. And not like gems on a beggar's hands; and the toil must be constant and unremitting. That lifts up the king to the crown's demands. -Ella Wheeler.

Its song would be full of joy too. Oh the June day, with its sunshine and balm, It's bird-song and beauty and bliss! And oh, the dear eyes looking love into mine, And lips that nevet mine with a kiss!

Since Dr. Tanner began his fast we have seen ounts of at least a score of persons who have gone through the forty-day ordeal with more or less flattering results. The way of the world is first to say a thing is impossible, and then to turn about, when that thing is done, and tell of the hundred and one times it has been done bere. Which is why we remark that example of Dr. Tanner has brought to the surface of cur ent memory a vast array of notable fasters or a st array of notable liars.
